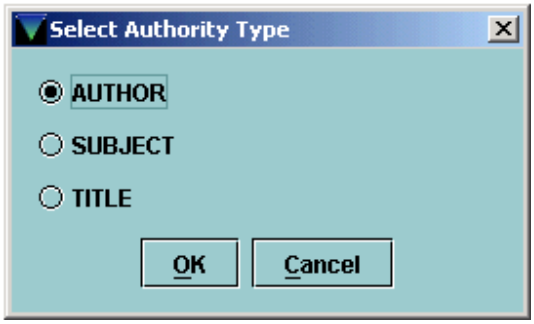
Changing the Authority Type in an Authority Record

When you view an authority record retrieved from a remote Z39.50 search, the authority type displays in the record title bar. You can change the authority type for the record when you download the record or use it to overlay an existing authority record in your database. To change an authority type, do the following:

1. Retrieve a record using a remote Z39.50 search.
2. Select a record from the browse list of records found in the search and choose Select.
3. To change the authority record, choose Edit.

   See Maintaining Records for more information about editing records.

4. Choose Save.
5. The dialog box indicates the current authority type.



6. Indicate the type of authority record you want to save by selecting one of the following and then choosing OK:
   - Author
   - Subject
   - Title

After you save the authority record to your database, it becomes a local authority record.